FAQ

WHO SHOULD PURCHASE THE LICENSE?

It’s up to you — either the designer or the client may buy the license(s) for the project.

HOW DO YOU DEFINE “USERS”?

The “User” is anyone who uses the Font Software directly (for design, type setting, office documents etc.) Examples:

• Often times, that is the designer or the design studio involved in the project. If there are 5 designers working on the project, 2 licenses are required, according to the License Options table.

• If the Font Software is being used by 1000 of non-designer employees to set documents in office software, that requires 37 licenses according to the License Options table.

DEMO FONTS

The Licensee may use the Demo version of the Font Software for testing, student works, non-commercial and non-profit projects, as long as it doesn’t violate the Restrictions section above.

Design of a personal portfolio itself (website/digital/printed) or a personal brand identity is considered to be a commercial project. However, the Licensee may include projects that feature the Demo fonts in their portfolio.
